We revisited the traditional room partition and substituted the metal hinges with a smaller wooden panel, which also allows for the screen to pivot 180 degrees. Over 100,000 holes are hand drilled into the 1" thick panel at 1/8th" spacing, allowing for the entire panel to be hand-embroidered using a zardozi double-needle embroidery technique. The piece is signed with an inlay of hand-cut brass. A total of 600 man-hours for woodwork and 900 man-hours for embroidery went into the creation of the screen.
